MARSHALL H. PALLORY GETS A DECISION AGAINST STEELE MACKAYE AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS.

After a period of eighteen years, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals has given a final decision in the case of Steele Mackaye and Marshall H. Mallery. Judgment is given in favor of -Mallory, with costs, with instructions to the court below to dismiss the bill. The opinion says: "It must be conclusively established that Mackaye's breach of contract was without adequate justification, and, that being so, it must follow that Mallery was absolved from further performance of the obligations of the contract, and was not liable to account." Further, it is said: "If Mackaye had observed the contract, he would not have en entitled to any profits at the time, because none had accrued according to the contract basis. This case was one which involved Steele Muckaye as manager of the Madison Square Theatre, and Marshall H. Mailory and his brother, the Rev. George H. Mallory, as proprietors of the theatre. The decision forms the completion of one of the nost interesting bits of New-York theatrical history of recent years. Mr. Mackage was un thor, manager and inventor. He had high ideals in regard to the stage, and he tried to carry the out at the Madison Square Theatre. It was his aim to get together the best possible stock company, and to divide some 20 or 30 per cent of the profits of the theatre among the leading actors in order to make them feel a more active interest the welfare of the theatre and the prosperity of the plays. He also meant to pay high royalties to any authors who could write plays to suit him. He proposed about 25 per cent. The usual royalty paid to a dramatic author is from 5 to 10 per cent. He opened the theatre in April, 1879, with his own ay, "Aftermath; or, Won at Last." In his efforts on behalf of the stage Mr. Mackaye had come in contact with the Mollorys and had interested them in his plans, to such an extent that He signed a contract with Marshall H. Mallory, by services as author, actor, manager or director, and the entire product of his intellectual labor and skill, with the copyrights of his plays and any patents newal, and Mr. Mackaye was to receive a salary of in addition.

Madison Square Theatre was then refitted to double stage still in use which Mr. Macwas placed in a little balcony over the stace, and there were other peculiarities of construction and arrangement which were regarded as notable at that time. The theatre was well advertised, and that time one of the most famous in the country, it opened with Mr. Mackaye's play, "Hazel Kirze, in adaptation, rearrangement or development of he older play. The Willow Copse. Before it ame to New-York it was played a few times in their cities under the title of "An Iron Will his had a remarkable success, running for five undred performances and being played out of win by three or feur companies.

Then the trouble arose between Mr. Mackaye and was broken off. Mackaye charged that the management had en arbitrarily taken out of his hands; that there is difficulty in obtaining an accounting of results that prices had been changed at the contract of re-

DEPLORABLE CONDITION OF BROOK-LYN'S STREETS AND ROADS-DR. L. C. LEROY ON REPAIRS

IN THIS BOROUGH.

If there is one thing more than another just now that the average cyclist wants to know about it is the condition of the roads in this district. Wheelnen have been snowbound so long that they are fairly aching to get into the country. Those living in this borough have had good riding on the asphalted streets for several days, and yesterday hey were able to get above the Harlem, and they Brooklyn that the enthusiastic followers of whe Brooklyn that the enthusiastic followers of wheeling have been having a hard time of it. The fine weather yesterday, however, tempted out many cyclists on the other side of the East River, but in most cases they found the roads in had condition. The asphalted streets running north and south are in fair shape, with generally a dry space in the centre of the street at worst. On the side streets, however, there are still piles of snow and slush, which will not entirely disappear for a day or two. The officials of the League of American Wheelmen and of the Good Reads Association will take cognizance of the conditions prevailing in Brooklyn, and in the near future a determined effort will be made to "get at Mayor Van Wyck" to see what can be done.

One member of the Cycle Squad of Brooklyn was called upon yesterday to do his first duty in a The big policeman was sent to find out condition of the driveways in Prospect Park and the cycle paths. His report, which he turned as denying the story. Freedman is reported to in last night, was not encouraging. The Southern golf season is at its height. At Aiken the Paimetto Golf Club is planning a sixday tournament, to be held from March 13 to 18 in-clusive, open to all members of the United States Golf Association, and to-day the Florida East Coast Golf Club will begin a series of tournaments for the championship of Florida to last until the end of the month. For the Paimetto Clubs tournament the prizes will be the Southern Cross and Alken cups, and entries should be sent on or before March 16 to Valentine Mott, secretary, Alken, S. C.

The list of Jersey golf clubs is growing to formidable proportions. The latest addition is that of the Yountacaw Country Club, of Nutley, which was formally organized on Saturday under the following officers: President, W. S. Benson; vice-presidents, Heary G. Prout and J. Trowbridge Hollister; financial secretary, Percy Jackson; recording secretary, A. F. Rice, and treasurer, Conrad Ray, Ground has been secured in Passale County near Nutley, and a links will be had sut imme-diately

The Princeton golfers are anxiously awaiting the time when the condition of the college links will permit a renewal of active play. This year a new ystem with regard to team matches is to adopted, and if a sufficient number of candidates appear two teams are to be organized, one known as the 'Varsity, consising, with few exceptions, of the men who constituted last season's team. and the other known as the second team, and matches is to be arranged for each. The 'Varsity has already arranged a meeting with the Richmond County Country Club, of Staten Island, on May 6, and negotiations are pending for dates with the Ardsley, Morris County, St. Andrews, Columbia and Lawrencevilie teams.

Reports from New-Haven indicate that golf is to be more popular there than ever before. The in June will somewhat handleap the team for the fall intercollegiate championship, but with a whole season in which to try new material there should be no lack of available candidates for the vacar cies. > The latest mails from the other side bring news of an interesting professional match at St. Andrews between Ben Sayers and Andrew Kirkcaldy, two of the best-known golfers in Great Britain which resulted in victory for the St. Andrews man, Kirkcaldy, by 1 up. "Old Tom" Morris was on the links the same day in a foursome, but not their side was 7 down and 6 to play. Whether "Old Tom" wins or loses makes little difference to golfers nowadays; the fact that he is able to swing a driver at all is sufficient inspiration.
